1. "The Ticking Bomb Hypothetical," Confronting Torture: Essays on the Ethics, Legality,

History, and Psychology of Torture Today, edited by Scott A. Anderson and Martha C. Nussbaum (University of Chicago Press, 2018). (Not clear which is the reprint, and which the original publication; it was "forthcoming" in the Anderson and Nussbaum volume for some years, and then Mark Timmons asked permission to include it in his Disputed Moral Issues; it was published in two different editions of that anthology before the University of Chicago volume was finally published.)
